Wednesday 20th May 2020

As it's Wednesday, I'd like you to write a poem today. We're going to use our imagination, and think of some alternative crazy uses for things.

There is a poem by Dave Horner called '13 things to do with a rainbow' that starts like this...

Keep it for a skipping rope,

Throw it like a boomerang,

Put it on your head and wear it as a headband,

Can you try and finish this poem off by thinking of your own ideas? As you can see, each idea goes on its own line. This type of poem doesn't have to rhyme.

If you want a challenge, you could try and write a poem of your own with one of these titles

5 things to do with the moon

10 ways to climb a mountain

12 ways to keep your mum/dad/brother/sister/teacher happy
