Journal Writing Part Four

Hello!

It's time to look at your journal again. By now, you should have created a place to keep your journal and it should have three pages: One about you, one about your family, one about your experiences in lockdown so far. (If you haven't completed all of these you can catch up- or you can just start from this week). Remember- don't print this sheet out and write on it, write your journal onto paper, and keep it all together so that you can bring it in when we return to school.

This week I would like you to think creatively: What five things would you change to make the world a better place, and why?

Think carefully about what you would like to improve about the world, and write your responses in paragraphs (on a separate sheet, not this sheet- you don't need to print this sheet out)

Here's an example: Look at the way I have started my sentences- use these phrases to start your sentences too.

My first suggestion that I believe would make the world a better place is to do with trees. I would make a law in every country, that for each tree that is chopped down, a new tree must be planted. I think that this is important because without the oxygen that trees produce, people and animals can't breathe and survive. In addition to this trees have many environmental benefits: they provide habitats for a wide variety of living creatures, they are beautiful to look at, they prevent flooding and overall, they make the world a better place.

My second suggestion...
